RICHMOND, March 25, 1880.

Major John Poe, Jr., Chief of Police: Dear Sir,-I deem it my duty to officially inform you that a recent act of the General Assembly of Virginia, approved by the Governor, section 19 of chapter 7 of the Revised Criminal Code (known as the "Sunday law") has been so amended and reenacted as to divest the honorable Hustings Court of this city of jurisdiction in the premises, and to vest full jurisdiction over the subject in the Police Justice.

This tribunal, then, is required by law ting it and obligation to enforce the 13th section Dr. I of chapter 46 of the Ordinances of 1879 of this city. This section, as you are well aware, contains the law for the city of Richmond in reference to the opening of barrooms and the traffic in liquor, &c., on the Sabbath day. The language of the section is clear and unmistakeable.

It is the duty of you, your officers and policemen, I respectfully submit, to report " and it is espenorthern boundaries has been anx-ly looked for. But the erratic "see to the observance of all ordinances of NARROW ESCAPE FROM FATAL BURNING. A few mornings ago a servant woman em-ployed in the family of a well known physician went up-stairs to make up the fire. In some way her dress and other clothing took fire from behind, and she would probably have been barned to death but for the timely aid of the head of the house. He took in the situation at once, jumped up as the girl's husband also belongs to a wealthy family, clothing was enveloped in flames, threw her to the floor and turned her body upon the possible cause known for the suicide. There fire, thus smothering it and putting it out at once. It would be well for persons to remember this same method.

STOLEN PROPERTY FROM NEW YORK. Robert Hall, of New York city, lost a horse, buggy, and harness in August last. The borse was driven to Virginia and sold to Thomas Terry, of Hanover county, by Charles Paul alias Frank Lawrence. The buggy was bought of Paul by W. C. Smith, and the harness was sold to a Petersburg liveryman. A deputy sheriff of New York city is here to reclaim the property and take it back to New York.

Paul, the thief, is now in Sing Sing, serving out a term of three and a half years at hard labor for stealing this property.

A Young Bride's Suicide. SHOOTING HERSELF AFTER CAREFULLY AR-RANGING HER TOILET FOR DINNER. At about noon on Tuesday Mrs. Agnes Sneathen, wife of Walter Sneathen, shot mittee. herself at her boarding-house, 188 Second venue, Pitsburgh, Mrs. Sneathen had been married about four months. In the morning she seemed to be in a very happy frame of mind, and was busily engaged in arranging some of her wedding presents and clothing which she had brought in from the East End, where she and her busband bad been living until within a week or two. She called in some of the ladies boarding at gested condition. He is considering it, but the house and spoke of arrangements she began to dress for dinner, and seemed to be unusually particular in her toilet. Just as dinner was announced a lady in the dining-room neard a report like a pistol, revolutionary or unlawful act. and, thinking it might be a piece of slate in the parlor fire, started to see whether any coals had shot out on the carpet. She had taken a few steps only toward the parlor when Mr. Walter Sneathen opened the front door and asked who had been shot. The lady said she supposed it was a piece Mr. Sneathen then opened the of slate. door of his room, and, seeing his wife lying across the bed, exclaimed, "Oh, my God, it's my wife!" The lady whom he addressed ran to the door, but Mrs. Sneathen was lying so quietly that she thought she was sleeping. When the curtain was raised she saw blood on the bed and a pistol lying by the side of the prostrate we- which prevailed on the previous night. Sneathen was so crazed by the sight that he seized the revolver, and, pressing it against his side, attempted to shoot himself. Miss Best, a lady boarder, who had been at-tracted to the room by the screams, caught his hand, and wresting the weapon from him ran up stairs and hid it in her room. Mrs. Sneathen was an unusually pretty girl, about eighteen years old, and belonged to a very wealthy family in the East End. Her

EDISON'S ELECTRIC LIGHT-NEW TESTS .-Edison's electric light, it is reported, has stood the tests to which it was subjected by Professors Barker, of the University of Penn-ylvania, and Rowland, of the Johns Hopkins University, very successfully. One of the lamps burned for 1,330 hours, and remained without injury. That is to say, on the average of six hours' work per day, which is about the maximum of a lamp or a gas-burner's task, it did over 221 days' work. Seven months' regular service without needing repairs may be considered a pretty good test. The other lamps burned in the same way at the rate of from 98 to 210 days. It is held that on this basis the electric light is demonstrated to be not only serviceable, but considerably cheaper in cost than gas.—Baltimore Sun.
